

ABSTRACT

A system includes a projector having a consumable component such, as a lamp. The consumable component includes a memory device. An application on the projector has access to the memory device. Additionally, a 5 user interface, updated by the application, is configured to display information from the memory device within the consumable component.